Game theory is the study of mathematical models of strategic interaction among rational decision-makers. It has applications in all fields of social science, as well as in logic, systems science and computer science. Originally, it addressed zero-sum games, in which each participant's gains or losses are exactly balanced by those of the other participants.

Set theory is the mathematical theory of well-determined collections, called sets, ... Player I wins the game if the sequence belongs to  $(A)$ . Otherwise, player II wins. The game  $(\{\mathcal{G}\}_A)$  is determined if there is a winning strategy for one of the players. A winning strategy for one of the players, say for player II, is a function  $(\sigma)$  from the set of finite sequences of ...

Since the game theory methodology currently institutes a binary purchasing mechanism, the profit per player ended up being roughly the same between the systems for this player range. However, upon inspection - THE BAT X showed stronger buys on more of the value drainers. For $5-$15 players, I would have preferred THE BAT in 2020.

The 'sense' part is in the 2 "if" statements. The game knows where the ball is, and where the paddle is. So the AI asks the game for those positions, and thereby 'senses' whether the ball is to the left or to the right. The 'think' part is also built in to the two "if" statements. These embody 2 decisions, which in this case ...
